JAX-APG

The Alternative Peer Group model was created to address the emotional, psychological, spiritual and social needs of teens struggling with substance abuse issues.

This unique treatment model integrates the important peer connection with sound clinical practice through intervention, support, education, accountability, and family involvement.

- Motivation: – Can the same relationships that initiate and support use and dependence prove effective in facilitating recovery?
- Program: – Recovering teens attend self-help groups with sober recovering peers.
- Parental permission if less than 18 years old, agreement to a behavioral contract stressing integrity and commitment to the program, especially attendance. – Parent participation is required.
- Each APG is led by a certified counselor.
